P. R. MILNES

The opinions expressed in this column are the personal views of the writer and do not necessarily reflect those of the management. In fact, many times they do not.

RATHER SHOCKING

Do you remember that old saying: "He is dead and doesn't know it?"

Of course none of us is of such importance in this world that the wheels of progress would stop with our passing, but it is not pleasant to discover that you are numbered among the "dear departed" while very much "in the quick."

A peculiar feeling came over me stealing when I found a postal card in my mail yesterday, addressed to "The Estate of P. R. Milnes." It contained the glad news—for my estate—that the magnificent sum of $4.58 was due my estate from the receiver of a long since defunct mining company in Arizona.

WEALTH DREAMS

Back in the dear, old days when I had one of those puerile ideas that something could come from nothing and that wealth could be accumulated overnight by the investment of a relatively few dollars in some fancy stock certificates, I acquired 900 shares of mining stock for which I outlaid $1 per share. The glib tongue of the promoter who unloaded the gaudy paper on me caused me to see many things which never came to pass; among them autos, yachts, a luxurious home and a life of ease free from any financial worries.

The years went on, but the mine didn't. It closed and was allowed to fill up because the small vein of gold had turned into copper and was not worth working. And thus the dreams dissipated into thin air, and the stock certificate was thrown into the wastebasket.

IN PECULIAR POSITION

Of course I had no idea that after

Callous Mother Given Jail Term By Judge Bray

MARTINEZ, Feb. 4.—Declared by court attaches to evince little or no interest in her four children, Mrs. Theresa Codina, 25, of San Pablo, is in the county jail here today serving a sentence of four months, part of a probationary term of one year on a child abandonment charge, with the prospect of spending additional time in jail if she does not agree to provide maternal care for her youngsters.

The woman was sentenced by Superior Judge A. F. Bray after he had several times attempted, fruitlessly, to gain from the woman an expression of willingness to resume life with her children.

Behind the woman's adamant attitude is a hint of romance. Mrs. Codina was arrested at Ventura after abandoning her children, ranging in age from 4 to 14 years, at San Pablo while her husband was in Stockton for medical treatment. He is still in Stockton.

Probation Officer Thomas Boyer reported to Judge Bray the woman left for Southern California with Frank Flores. She was returned here three weeks ago.

Boyer's report declares Mrs. Codina, who was married when she was 14, is not interested in her children any longer. Her chief interest, his report states, is to return to Southern California, get a divorce and marry Flores.

Six In Family Dead From Gas

The bodies were found about 5 P. M. Five of them were rushed to Braddock General hospital, near Pittsburgh, but efforts to revive them were futile.

LOCAL WOMAN BAGS BURGLAR

INDUSTRIAL UNREST WORLD-WIDE

MAN MAY BE "PASS KEY" BURGLAR

A pugilist, whether working or "at leisure" holds no terrors for Mrs. C. L. Keating and her neighbor, Mrs. R. LaPira. It's true the ex-pugilist in question was no Joe Louis, but when Mrs. Keating saw him leaving her home at 624 Seventeenth street just as she was returning from a shopping expedition carrying a well-packed suitcase she threw caution to the wind and pursued in a manner which demonstrated her singleness of purpose.

The fleeing pugilist and the bag preceded Mrs. Keating down the street, but Mrs. Keating had more stamina than the fleeing pug. She caught up with him, forced him to open the suitcase, made him disgorge jewelry he had concealed on his person and then made him return the loot to her house.

After she recovered her property and took a breathing spell she notified her husband who called the police. The fighter, however, had not remained all this time, but was picked up just two hours later by Patrolman W. T. Smith at the Southern Pacific station.

He gave his name when questioned as John Gordon, 28, an ex-prize fighter of New York. Police now him for questioning, when he admitted he had been in the county for a week. Police believe he may be connected with the recent "pass key" burglaries in Martinez and Richmond. He will be questioned further this morning by Chief of Police L. E. Jones.

Oakland Woman Claims Share In Beggar Fortune

OAKLAND, Feb. 4.—UP—Mrs. Elma Odell today sued her cousin, Mrs. Katherine Beckwith for a $50,000 estate left by Mrs. Odell's mother, a blind woman who accumulated her modest fortune thru 30 years of begging on the highways of California.

When Mrs. Odell was a little girl, she accompanied her mother Mrs. Kate Vrooman, in her wanderings, sang to the melodies strummed on an old guitar and passed a coin cup among the curious spectators who watched them.

In time, the little girl grew up, married, had a child of her own and later the child joined the pair in begging.

The attorney for Mrs. Odell, H. A. Leland, charges that Mrs. Vrooman, blind, paralyzed and senile, was kept from Mrs. Odell for a year and a half and before her death was unduly influenced to deed her estate to Mrs. Beckwith.

ROOSEVELT PUTS CURB ON LENDING

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—UP—President Roosevelt tonight trimmed $1,000,000,000 from potential government loans, with the statement that the move was justified by the nation's continued economic recovery.

HEADS ARE SUMMONED
Simultaneously, he disclosed he had summoned heads of the government's spending agencies to a White House conference on Thursday to obtain an up-to-the-minute check on Federal expenditures.

These steps, he said, did not mean necessarily a "tightening" of the government's purse strings. They were closely scrutinized, however, in the light of inflation agitation, weakness of the dollar abroad and a rebellion in Congress against imposition of new taxes to finance the new $500,000,000 farm program and the $2,375,000,000 soldier bonus.

DISCLOSURES ARE MADE

Mr. Roosevelt's disclosures came at his press conference after he had spent an hour with heads of the government's lending agencies. The conferees were Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, Chairman Jesse Jones of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Housing Director Stewart McDonald, AAA Administrator Chester Davis and Cyril Upham, treasury advisor.

At the conference began, the Treasury announced shipment of another $720,000 in gold to France and Holland to bolster the dollar. This brought the total of gold released for export in the past 48 hours to $12,000,000.

WILL CURB LENDING

HATED THE SYSTEM

Frankfurter forced his way into Gustloff's home at 8 P. M. and fired five bullets from a revolver into the editor's body. Gustloff was killed instantly. ## WILL KEEP HOBOES OUT OF STATE

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4.—UP—Los Angeles "Foreign Legion" composed of municipal police stationed along state borders to protect California from invading vagrants, tonight faced a storm of critical fire which may force its immediate withdrawal.

While protests from other states and from citizens of this state cracked about the ears of Police Chief James E. Davis, state legal offices, highway police and city officials repudiated his "anti-hobo" campaign before it was fairly under way.

ON EXPEDITIONARY DUTY.—Meanwhile 126 Los Angeles police sent on expeditionary duty to meet incoming hoboos with the ultimatum: "Go back, or go to jail reportedly were encountered at strategic points of entry, awaiting "attack" orders from Chief Davis.

The tall, state-eyed police chief stood pat in the face of opposition to his decision to take drastic action to protect the state in general—and Los Angeles in particular—from swarms of tramps who make Southern California a seasonal wintering place.

"We are acting under agreement with sheriffs and county authorities along the border points involved," he explained. "Our policemen are deputized regularly and officially, and can make arrests the same as any other county officer."

AUTHORITIES IN ROW.—Meanwhile the Los Angeles City Council, in a table thumping session, denounced the police chief "show his authority" for sending 136 of the city's police force to "foreign countries" to perform border police services.

City Attorney Ray Chesbore, Davis' quoted authority for legal approval, denied he had given the expeditionary forces his "legal blessing."

"I was asked for an opinion several months ago," he said "on legality of police going out of city limits, but it would not apply to the chief's 'legion' and I shall not rule on that matter unless I am asked to do so."

NO LAW FOR ACTION.—State legal opinion also contradicted the police chief's position. Deputy Attorney General L. G. Campbell remarked: "I can't imagine a Los Angeles policeman going to Truckee, for instance, and asking a vagrant, 'are you going to Los Angeles?' and arresting the man if he answered in the affirmative."

However, "foreign legionnaires" reportedly were being sworn in as deputy sheriffs in "key sectors" in this area, although no reports had been received from the "northern division" sent to Yakima, Calif., on the Oregon-California State line.

SWEARING IN COPS.—At Indio, Calif., on the parched desert strip between California and Arizona—fruitful hunting ground for hoboos who ride slow freight trains into the state—Sheriff Carl Rayburn announced he was "swearing in city cops as fast as they come."

Squads dispatched to the Yuma, Ariz., border, on the southeastern corner of the state, reportedly erected a "stockade" for rounding up tramps, fingerprinting them and performing other services mentioned in Davis' manifesto.

AT TRUCKEE.—Eight Los Angeles police officers installed themselves in this borderland city tonight, prepared for a drive against penniless transients who threaten to turn Sunny Southern California into a "thieves and paupers' playground."

The officers, led by Sergeant J. G. Douglas plan a campaign directed mainly against "hoboos and bums" aboard freight trains passing through here. Tomorrow morning they will confer with Southern Pacific railroad officials, then swing into action sometime tomorrow.

Oregon Aroused Over 'Turn Back' Indigent Plan

FINGERPRINT PROPOSAL IS TURNED DOWN

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 4.—UP—A proposal made by Ray Edgar, Los Angeles member of the Board of Equalization, that applicants for liquor licenses be required to send in their fingerprints with their applications, today failed to arouse any enthusiasm among other members of the board.

Edgar said the plan would provide a means of "driving the racials out of the liquor business" and prove of benefit to the industry, which he described as having "10 times as many liquor establishments as there should be."

Edgar was told he could do as he chose in his own district and use the finger print method if he desired. Another suggested by Edgar that licensees be required to post $5000 bonds also failed to elicit support of the other members of the board, who questioned whether they could demand such a bond under existing law.

Edgar informed the board that in response to a request from the Los Angeles school board, there would be no licenses granted for establishments within 1000 feet of a public school.

The board voted denial of 124 licenses throughout the state and decided that distillers who attempt to avoid payment of the state excise tax will be required to pay a $1000 fraud penalty.

The first firm to feel the new order is the Whitehall Distilleries, San Francisco, charged with a shortage of $325 in its excise stamp account. It will be required to pay $1925 to the State or face loss of its license.

Further investigation of San Francisco pin games will be necessary before he is ready to submit his proposal that liquor licenses be denied establishments in which the

CRUCIAL GAMES FOR THE BEARS THIS WEEKEND

BERKELEY, Feb. 4.—Back in the Conference running and just a step behind the leaders, the University of California basketball team heads for the toughest assignment of the season Friday and Saturday nights at California gymnasium, meeting Southern California, the defending Conference champions, who are at present tied with Stanford for the leadership of the Southern division.

The Golden Bears pulled up into third place on an unexpected 39 to 35 win over Stanford last Friday night. They have already lost two games to the Trojans, 51 to 29 and 25 to 22, but these two games were played at the conclusion of a 6,000 mile transcontinental barnstorming trip, when the Bears were travel-weary.

Playing on their home court and in good physical condition, the Bears have hopes of making a better showing against El Trojan. Since the games mark the "crucial" point in the campaign, University of California athletic authorities are making preparations for capacity crowds of 7,400 each night.

Couch C. M. "Xibs" Price is expected to work his players light this week in order to have them in top shape for the Trojans.

Winning the series is already out of the question, but the Bears can make it two-all—which would be an improvement upon the records of recent seasons. California has not won a series victory from the Trojans since 1929 although they tied in 1934, and last year were blanked in four straight games. Since 1929 the Southern Californians have won 18 games, the Bears only seven.

END IS SEEN OF MARITIME FEDERATION

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 4.—UP—Disintegration of the Maritime Federation of the Pacific, long object of bitter attack by ship owners, appeared in the making tonight as the Marine Cooks and Stewards Association announced withdrawal from the group.

Mervyn Rathbone, secretary of the San Francisco council of the federation, said he expected the Sailors' Union of the Pacific and the Marine Firemen's Union to take similar action.

The Sailors' Union, now under fire by the International Seamen's Union in a court action following revocation of the local's charter, has been ordered to withdraw from the federation by the I. S. U.

Eighteen unions composed the federation, formed in Seattle last year as a "united front" for maritime workers. The Pacific coast unit of the International Longshoremen's Association and the Sailors' Union, numbering the largest membership of any of the waterfront organizations, were mainstays of the federation.

The federation, while owning no contractual agreements with employers, has been a leader in agitation for improved working conditions, and recently joined other groups in demanding congressional investigation of Pacific Coast maritime labor conditions. Harry Bridges, militant San Francisco I. L. A. leader, and Harry Landberg, of the Sailors' Union, have been active in the federation's administration.

The federation charged that employers had joined a concerted drive to force a "lockout" of workers and general move to crush west coast maritime unions. Shipowners replied that the group merely sought to divert attention from its own failure to observe working agreements with the various unions.

END IS NEAR

The break in the federation ranks came closely after announcement that the Sailors' Union had voted to return to work aboard 64 steam schooners tied up by a recent strike. Tie-up of the schooners, most of which are engaged in the coast lumber trade, was the last remaining "hangover" from a series of recent walk-outs that have held numbers of vessels idle.

Federal Judge Michael J. Roche today heard arguments on a motion by the Sailors' Union to dismiss suit by the I. S. U. seeking a permanent injunction against the local to prevent its officers disposing of its money or property.

He has promised a decision tomorrow on a motion by Aaron Sapiro, representing the Sailors' Union, for dissolution of a temporary restraining order he previously issued at request of the I. S. U. Sapiro maintained that the Federal court lacked jurisdiction.

Spectacular Waterfront Fire

IN A spectacular blaze believed caused by static electricity in a gas line below a Ventura, Cal., wharf, flames caused damage estimated near $100,000 in destroying three large warehouses. The flames were fed by exploding barrels of fuel which fanned by a high wind defied streams of water played on it by firemen. Here is the fire, the worst in the city's history, at its height.

HEWITT CASE MAY BRING 3 ARRESTS

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 4.—UP—Arrest of gay Mrs. Maryon Cooper Hewitt, international socialite, and two prominent San Francisco doctors was sought tonight on mayhem charges in the sterilization of Ann Cooper Hewitt, "forgotten heiress."

A formal complaint signed by Police Inspector George Engler, was received by grey-haired Municipal Judge Sylvain Lazarus at a brief hearing today, eliminating a month's investigation of the bizarre case.

Named with Mrs. Hewitt were Dr. Milton Tillman, member of the San Francisco County commission, who approved the sterilization at the mother's request on the ground Ann was "feeble-minded," and Dr. Samuel G. Boyd, who performed the operation.

DOCTORS TO SURRENDER

Attorneys for the doctors said their clients would surrender immediately warrants were issued, then probably would contest legality of the proceedings with an application for a writ of habeas corpus.

Mrs. Hewitt reportedly was in New York or New Jersey, Milton Tillman, representing her in court today, said she would resist the charges to the utmost. Legal authorities immediately questioned likelihood that she could be extradited to California on warrants issued by a municipal court.

MAYHEM A FELONY

Mayhem, under California law, is a felony, carrying a possible sentence of one to 11 years imprisonment. Judge Lazarus offered to release the physicians in the case on their own recognizance, but their attorneys said they wished to be admitted to bail. The judge then placed bail at $250 for each, while for Mrs. Hewitt it was placed at $10,000 bond or $5,000 cash.

Ann, her lips dubbed bright carnine and her thin eyebrows penciled into a sweeping arch, dabbed occasionally at her eyes as the criminal proceedings moved forward.

While her attorney declined to ask her to sign the criminal complaint in the case, her $500,000 damages suit against the three persons named today and Mrs. Mary Sealie, San Francisco psychiatrist, touched off the investigation which brought mayhem charges against her mother.

STERILIZATION CHARGE

In the damage suit she charged that she was sterilized without her knowledge or consent in a plot by her mother to gain control of a $2,000,000 fortune and trust fund. She alleged that her mother had denied her an education, and had treated her with coldness and complete lack of motherly affection for years.

ACTION A SURPRISE

Engler's action in signing the complaint today was a surprise, inasmuch as police and District Attorney Matthew Brady's office had declined to take any action previously. They had asked Judge Lazarus to decide whether warrants should be issued, but attorneys for the doctors challenged Lazarus' authority to rule on the issue. Engler's move ended the battle temporarily, pending the promised habeas corpus action.

DOCTOR AND NEAR BRIDE ARE INDICTED

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 4.—UP—

On the eve of his possible wedding day, Hjalmar Groneman, pale-faced, drugless doctor, tonight planned a vigorous defense to manslaughter charges involving the death of his second wife, Ella May Clemmons, "Christ Angel of Chinatown."

Groneman was indicted by the county grand jury last night which held that he was guilty of criminal negligence in failing to obtain medical attention for Ella May, and in retaining Charlotte Enberg as her nurse.

He and Miss Enberg, tall, blonde artist, have filed notice of intention to wed, and are eligible to receive a marriage license tomorrow. Groneman admitted that Miss Enberg had no expert knowledge of a nurse's duties, and that they had been living together the last year and a half, part of which time he purportedly was living with Miss Clemmons as her common-law husband.

Miss Enberg told the grand jury that she had not "minded the arrangement, because you can't trust a man around the corner anyway."

Miss Clemmons, sister-in-law of Howard Gould, $10,000,000 heir and New York social scion, died last September, just seven days after she married Groneman in a secret ceremony. No marriage license was obtained by the couple since California law permits persons who have lived together more than a year to be married by any accredited pastor.

Groneman, who appeared last night before the grand jury, admitted moving Miss Clemmons from her fantastically furnished apartment in San Francisco's Chinatown to an Alameda apartment, and finally to a hospital one night before she died. He said he moved the desperately ill woman to "escape the noise" of her apartment.

Under a will made some three years ago Groneman was named heir to Miss Clemmons' $50,000 estate and a special trust fund.

"I'm not going to run away and leave $50,000 that is rightfully mine," Groneman assured police today when they warned him not to attempt to escape.

The indictment climaxed a week's aftermath to Ella May's strange life. For months Groneman told her friends that she was alive and well, despite the fact she died last September. He said he wished to conceal his connections with her.

Ella May, who conducted a kindergarten in Chinatown, gained her name of "Christ Angel" from her work and direction of relief activities after the 1906 earthquake and fire. She once married a Chinese dope addict "to save him from his habit," but eventually relinquished him to a Chinese wife.

FITTS HURL THREATS

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4.—District Attorney Byron Fitts "shouted" a threat in court today to administer a physical beating to the prosecutor in his trial on perjury charges. Fitts threw the courtroom into uproar after a morning of cross-examination by the prosecution of Mrs. Ardell Fitts, the District Attorney's mother.

CHILE STRIKE IS FOMENTED BY AGITATORS

SANTIAGO, Chile, Feb. 4.—UP—Chile was threatened with a general strike today as bakers, painters, carpenters, textile workers and machinists walked out following the sudden strike of railroad men Sunday night.

Widespread sabotage on the railroads continued, and troops clashed with one group which they surprised in the act of dynamiting three kilometers of roadway near Quilicura.

No reports of casualties had been received here, but establishments closed with exception in several parts. The soldiers were under orders to close all headquarters of the workers' Federation which the government believed was influenced by Communists to call the strike.

The marine ministry ordered a fleet to stand by at Valparaiso, though it was to have sailed tomorrow on a southern cruise.

OTHER TRADES INVOLVED

Strikes of the other trades were only partly in sympathy with the railroad walkout, as an agrarian, the bakers and bakers and textile workers have complaint about the new five-cent raw materials tax.

Eleven hundred machine shop employees from the railroad who at San Bernardo joined the strike today.

REFUSE TO JOIN

Although railroad officials every other section reported striking sabotage, the second wave, comprising the most populous sector of Chile from Santiago to Valparaiso, was not affected by the road strike. Employees refused to join the movement of the zones.

CALLED WITHOUT WARNING

The strike was called without warning Sunday night, the workers demanding higher wages. Many of industry leaders have immediately branded the strike as Communist, and said the railroad workers have had their wages increased three times in the three years.

"The government has trusty information," said the origin of these revolutionary activities, and knows that strike is the result of orders by local and foreign Communist organizations."

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Simultane-ously with the conviction of three officials responsible for the Morro Castle disaster, the Bureau of Na-vigation and Steamboat Inspection is trying to clean house.

However, Joseph B. Weaver, new and forthright director of this long moribund agency, is having difficul-ty with J. M. Johnson, Assistant Secretary of Commerce and his im-mediate superior.

Weaver, a plain-talking maritime expert, was appointed following the Morro Castle disaster, in order to snap the Bureau out of its decade-old doldrums. He was assured of a free hand.

For a while he got it. Personnel and efficiency of the Bureau were greatly improved.

But recently Johnson has been quietly blocking Weaver's reforms. One of his undercover maneuvers was to side track Weaver's request for an increased appropriation so a larger and able staff of inspectors could be employed.

Weaver and his assistants are not taking this back-stage sabotage quietly. They are fighting back with considerable vigor. His Board of In-spectors held a meeting and adopted a resolution strongly urging the need of additional funds to remedy "deplorable conditions" existing in the agency—a long list of which they included.

The resolution was adopted uni-versally and delivered in person to Johnson. But Johnson suppressed the embarrassing document. Just the same, that did not prevent it from getting into the hands of the press.

Commerce Department insiders say that ship operators are deeply and secretly resentful of Weaver's bare-knuckle crusading.

NOTE—Johnson is a South Car-olina politician, knows nothing about shipping, was once State high way commissioner, is a friend of Secretary Roper's.

MRS. ROOSEVELT
Mrs. Roosevelt is tightening up on answers to controversial ques-tions put to her by correspondents at her press conferences. Last week she was briefest in months.

Question: Have you read ac-counts of the Talmadge convention held in Georgia?
Mrs. Roosevelt: Yes.
Q: Anything to say? Any com-ments?
Mrs. R: No.
Q: Have you read accounts of Al Smith's address?
Mrs. R: Yes.
Q: Have you any comments?
Mrs. R: No.
Q: Have you read Mr. Landon's speech?
Mrs. R: Yes.
Q: Any comments?
Mrs. R: No.

VANDENBERG-LANDON
When Presidential aspirant Lan-don blasted the New Deal the other evening, his most interested Wash-ington listener was Presidential as-pirant Vandenberg.

The Senator from Michigan sat back in an arm-chair in the Ward-man Park Hotel and listened quiet-ly until Landon struck these words: "We are going to be many years unscrubbing the eggs cook-up by the kitchen cabinet of this administration."

Vandenberg sat upright. Then he sat back again.

The ink was scarcely dry on a speech Vandenberg himself had just finished writing—one to be deliv-ered in New York City February 12. In that speech he had planned to say something much like the Lan-don line. It was this:

"The gentlemen in power chal-lenge us to offer remedies of our own to replace the remedies they have adopted. They challenge us with the tranquility of a cook who knows that after she has made the omelet it's too late to unscramble the eggs."

Vandenberg has a fondness for nearly turned phrases. And he has turned such phrases ever since his editorial days with the Grand Rapids Herald.

So effective were they that War-ren G. Harding drafted Vandenberg as ghost writer for his front porch campaign. He liked Vandenberg's speeches so much that he wrote a letter of thanks which the 1936 as-pirant still keeps framed, on his of-fice wall.

NOTE—The Michigan Senator is now his own ghost writer.

McCARL'S SUCCESSOR
Although the 15-year term of Comptroller General J. R. McCarl does not expire until July 1, a hot behind-the-scenes scramble to fill his shoes already has started. Draw-ing $10,000 a year, the post is one of the choicest plums on the patron-age counter.

Hollywood Film Shop

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 4.—UP—"Did Napoleon have a bath tub? If so, did it bear the imperial crest?"

There is a brace of questions that would stymie almost any ex-pert on the history of France, and plumbing probably. However, Hol-lywood knows.

At least one of the individuals vital in the production of films but seldom mentioned believes she knows the answers. And answers to practically any question you could think of, if she didn't, she would know where or how to find it.

This all-knowing person is Mrs. Maude K. Bowman. She might be given the title of "director of his-torical research" for the Warner Brothers-First National Studios.

Detail in film productions some-times require historical fact. If the directors decide to skip something in building a set or costuming a player there is always sure to be some among the millions seeing the picture who will spot the mistake.

Mrs. Bowman has been doing the work of supplying unique histor-ical data for many years. She has amassed a huge library of facts and assembled a collection of valuable books that give an authentic pic-ture of historical eras.

Sometimes, however, the writers stump even her fund of knowledge. Such was the case when a question was raised during the filming of Marion Davies' new cosmopolitan production, "Hearts Divided."

The story is a historical romance. The time is 1803. Robert M. Haas, art director, wanted to know what the historic Patterson mansion in Baltimore looked like 133 years ago.

Mrs. Bowman did not have any real estate prospectus of the 1803 Baltimore vintage on hand, so she obtained the information from the archives of the Baltimore public li-brary.

"You don't know what kind of questions I have to answer some-times," sighs Mrs. Bowman in a contemplative mood. "You'd be sur-prised."

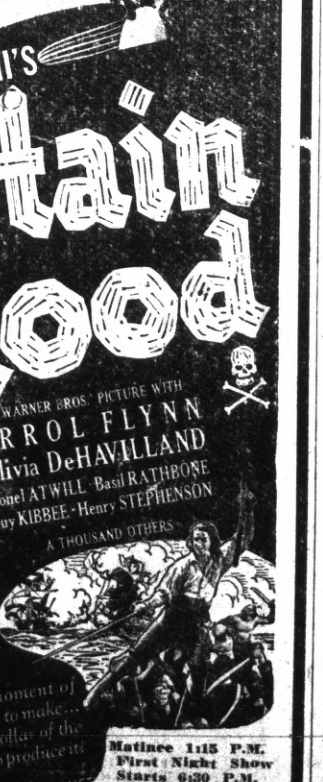

But getting back to Napoleon's Saturday night facilities.

Yes, he had a bathtub. Empress Josephine installed the first tub and then the Little Corporal fol-lowed. As for the crest part of it, there wasn't any.

NEW YORK INSIDE OUT By DON O'MALLEY

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Broadway childhood days in springtime, sent letters of protest to Mayor LaGuardia, and even used the radio for a public appeal against the cracking down on hurdy-gurdies.

Actually, the whole rumpus has been engineered by press agents, who have spurred their clients on to take advantage of a very juicy set-up. The truth of the matter is that hurdy-gurdies are a nuisance, and that most people are glad they're gone.

Those with an ear for music used to write under the sour notes coping from the ill-tuned barrels, and those who didn't suffer paid no at-tention to them in the first place. As a matter of fact, no one would ever have noticed their disappear-ance if the press hadn't played ball with the p-a-s.

Besides, is this anti-noise cam-paign serious, or isn't it? Are other murder and trial plays to attract your attention?

Two old stand-bys (or should they be called new ones?) carry on "without faltering." "The Children," "Houdini," and "Three Men on a Horse." The last-named is still the best comedy in town.

Take your pick.

BOCMETANG Ray Perkins ston-eped me on Seventh Avenue the other afternoon and dragged me out of the icy blast to tell me about a friend of his who liked his liquor. The friend arrived at a bar one evening, and ordered his favorite drink, a gin rickey.

"By the way," said the tippler, tossing a phony quarter on the bar, "give this to some drunk tonight before he goes home."

The following morning, while dressing, his friend reached into his pocket for a handkerchief and found the phony quarter with a bounce.

CHAPTER XI
KATE pushed the door open, straightened herself that she might appear firm-stepped and sober, and made her way to the bar.

"I'd like another half pint," she told Luke Conners. The careless smile on Luke's face changed suddenly.

"Sorry," he answered, "but not tonight, Katie."

She lifted her eyes pathetically to him. "But I've got to have it," she pleaded.

"No," Luke said firmly. Then, in a kinder voice, "But, Katie, surely you haven't drunk that other half pint already?"

She smiled. "Not me," she said. "People dropped in to call." Luke looked at her. He knew people seldom came to see Katie Jarvis.

Katie saw at once she had used the wrong approach. She tried another half pint for.

"Yes," Luke lifted bushy brows. "Hush!" Katie whispered. "I wouldn't have anyone but you know this. But my son Lester is coming home tonight!"

LUKE turned away, nervously moving bottles in and out of line. He didn't know what to say. Katie smiled, sure now she had won his sympathy.

"And you wouldn't want him to come home without a drink to cel-ebrate?"

Luke turned back to her. "You're sure he'll be home tonight?"

"Positive," Katie whispered. "Pardon, you know—one of them pardons from the governor!"

She flushed at her own ingenu-ity—flushed more when she saw Luke turn and bring out another

May Prove Tuberculosis Cure

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4.—"An onion a day keeps the doctor away" may soon prove the modern version of an old saying. Onions and garlic, most humble of garden vegetables, may prove powerful curatives for tuberculosis and leprosy, according to Dr. C. C. Lindgren, head of the department of bacteriology at the University of Southern California.

The same strange volatile properties that have made the eating of raw onions and garlic so taboo in polite society now may bring relief to millions of sufferers, experiments by Dr. Lindgren indicate.

Virile bacilli that can be killed only after three hours of boiling die after only an hour's exposure to garlic fumes. Nearly 600 tests have been made by the bacteriologist, and the results always are the same, he said.

Fatty germs such as those causing tuberculosis and leprosy are most easily affected because the onion odor permeates the fat, just as it will rub butter flavored near it. Cultures of bacillus subtilis, escherichia coli, serratia marcescens, mycobacterium smegmatis and mycobacterium leprae have been stored in petri-dishes, and exposed for limited time periods to the vapors of one gram of ground garlic. On plates treated a few minutes the growth of the bacteria is definitely limited, and on those treated an hour the germs are killed.

The very fatty characteristics of tuberculosis and leprosy germs that in the past has made them so difficult to control make them particularly susceptible to the onion odor.

No group of physicians has yet supported onions or garlic as a cure. Dr. Lindgren said, in pointing out that conditions might be different within the human body that they are in the test tube.

Dr. Lindgren said that Egyptian pharaohs commanded their subjects to eat garlic as a plague preventive. It also was used as a curative by the ancient Chinese and by medieval physicians, he added.

Self Helpers Are Badly In Need Of Funds

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 4.—UP—Unless the Federal Government takes some action to supply funds to continue California's self-help cooperative program, the whole undertaking may be abandoned, State Relief Administration headquarters reported today.

Winslow Carlton, director of the self-help cooperative division of the SRA, is now in Washington trying to secure funds through the re-employment administration. Unless something is accomplished by Wednesday, SRA officials said, Carlton will be instructed to return to California.

Failure to secure the needed funds will result in drastic curtailment of the personnel in the self-help division of the SRA, C. I. Schottland, acting administrator, said.

HERE/ TO YOUR HEALTH
By Dr. FRANK MCCOY
AUTHOR OF "THE FIRST WAY TO HEALTH"
All questions regarding Health and Diet will be answered. Large, stamped, self-addressed envelopes must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address Dr. Frank McCoy, care of the paper.

A GOOD SUGGESTION
In yesterday's article, I pointed out that in some cases, the patient may refuse to admit he is well. Before any one can enjoy the greatest possible good health, he must be willing to concede that it is within his grasp—willing to admit it, to expect it. The patient must admit that he has health and strength, and all of those things to which he is honestly entitled.

At the same time, he must continue to follow a sensible diet, to secure an adequate amount of exercise. He must persist in observing those habits of living which bring health. When he is trying to live according to good rules, trying to learn how to improve mentally and physically, then there is no reason whatsoever not to admit that he is well. He must admit that health is his, admit it freely and willingly. As soon as he lives a clean, wholesome life, he must admit that he can become well. If he has not yet fully recovered, then he must admit that health is coming, while if he is sound and well in every part, then he must admit that health is flowing through every part of his body. Just getting to the point where he is willing to admit that he is well, wholly well, is an important point. There must be no "if" or "buts"—but just this deep, strong admission that all is well.

Such an admission is in itself a powerful suggestion for good. It will reach the unconscious mind and impress that part of the mind. Even those who appear to have average health will improve by stopping every times each day and saying, "I admit that I am well." Get the feeling behind those words—get the feeling of being as well as possible. Admit that you have an honest right to be strong and whole.

Think about health, expect to enjoy good health, and suggest health to yourself. You may be sure that kind of thinking will build an expectant frame of mind—a frame of mind where you expect results and admit those results when they come. You admit your power to be well, admit it both in the conscious and subconscious parts of your mind. Perhaps while you are giving yourself those good suggestions about admitting how good you feel, you may be helped by getting a picture of disease as something that is going away from you, and at the same time, having a picture of health as something that is coming, or that is already within and filling every part. Perhaps you will be able to get that picture of your body as flooded with health-building forces just as a wet garment is flooded with water. Try to get these pictures and before you go to sleep at night, suggest to yourself that you admit that you are well.

Certainly, one of the most important mental attitudes to assume is the attitude of admitting you are healthy. Admit you are healthy right now. Sit down in the nearest chair and spend a few minutes remembering you are well, admit it with every part of you, and see how you are re-energized by that. Admit it wholeheartedly, without any resistance, without any reluctance. Make that good suggestion to yourself. There must be no thought of trying to prove it, no thought of arguing about it—but just the sincere desire to admit to yourself that health is yours.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
(Eye Strain)
Question: Mrs. W. S. A. writes: "I am troubled by my eyes hurting when I try to read and the print seems to blur. While I do not have a headache, my head sometimes seems to feel heavy. I have always been a great reader and when I am unable to pick up a book or a magazine, my chief recreation is taken away from me. What do you think is wrong?"
Answer: It is probable that your symptoms are arising from eye strain. The best advice I may give you is to have the eyes tested, to find out if you need glasses. Eye strain frequently results from over-use of the eyes in close reading, especially when an eye defect such as nearsightedness or farsightedness exists and is uncorrected by suitable lenses. While you are to be commended for learning from books and magazines, remember that indoor recreation such as reading, should be balanced by outdoor exercise such as walking. Try to vary your interests so that, at the same time you build up your mind, you also build up the body.

(Sties)
Question: Franklin T. wants to know: "Although I wear glasses, I have a sty about every three months. I do not understand why the trouble returns."
Answer: A sty is a small boil which forms on the edge of the eyelid, causing swelling, redness, pain and discharge. When the cause is enervation induced by a faulty diet and other bad habits of living, then you may be sure that eyestrain is not the most probable cause. You may find the following general suggestions helpful: first, obtain sufficient sleep; second, do not allow yourself to become enervated by over-indulgence in such emotions as worry, excitement or irritation; take more exercise; keep the large intestine clean; follow a simple, sensible diet; avoid using the eyes for too long a time especially in a poor light or under glaring light.

Milk Has Done a Great Job in Preserving Children's Health

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

THE old saying goes, "There is nothing new under the sun." I guess that is right, but there are things new to me, and we are slowly learning to understand a better use of the old things. Last night a man of seventy-three, retired and well preserved, remarked to me that only in the last few months had he discovered he had a heart, meaning he was becoming conscious of the fact it was not working as smoothly as it had before.

He asked him if he knew of any other machine that would work day and night, rain or shine for 73 years and still be in good working order? He said "no," that he was approaching the end of life, but he had no marked regrets. Then went on to say he was sure his generation had seen more advancement than any single generation before and he felt no one future generation would see more.

In enumerating the things he had seen developed he mentioned the telephone, electric light, gasoline motor, electric motor, automobile, airplanes, and the way of industrial development.

As he talked I thought of the wonderful advancement in the field of medicine since I started. In my student days antiseptic surgery was in its infancy, and see where it has gone. They can almost take the body apart and put it together again.

Preventing Disease

Antitoxin for the cure of diphtheria was discovered and has saved thousands of lives. Now we have toxin-antitoxin to prevent catching the disease. The same is developing for scarlet fever, measles, whooping cough, and many other of the deadly children's diseases. Then came the methods of preventing typhoid and malaria fever. Some time ago I was asked what I considered the greatest discovery in modern medicine. I answered that in my opinion the greatest was the method to produce and preserve clean milk. They looked surprised. It seemed too simple.

It was not simple to those who studied and fought and argued to induce those in charge to see the need. Pure, clean milk has saved the lives of more children and enabled us to prevent more disabling, crippling, and life-taking conditions than any other one accomplishment. I can never be too thankful that the old "summer complaint" and "cholera infantum" are gone.

Our younger doctors don't know of such diseases, except by hearsay. More spectacular advancements are the X-ray, radium, insulin, and the bacterial serum and vaccines. There are so many improvements in the manner and methods of diagnosis of disease and forms of treatment that the practice of medicine has been revolutionized in the last thirty or forty years.

Not the least of these advances has been the discovery of the role played by the vitamins in the development and preservation of our physical and mental growth. The vitamins were always present, just where they are now. But we did not know of their presence or their action. They had not been given alphabetical letters such as A, B, C, D, E and G.

The Old Remedy

Our forefathers gave their patients cod liver oils in large and disagreeable quantities, not because they contained vitamins A and D, but because they did the work of building up a depleted system, they stimulated a lagging appetite and made good strong bones.

They knew what it did, but not why. Another of the recent discoveries of some of the actions of things that were always present and doing their work is that of some of the functions of the glands of internal secretions.

Our knowledge of the action of these organs is still very meager, but as our understanding grows and we learn more of how to control them we shall make longer strides in regulating growth of mind and body than by any other one method. As we contemplate what can be accomplished by the work of the thyroid, the adrenals, the pituitary, the pancreas, the pineal glands and the gonads, we can see the possibility of the final accomplishment of the physicians' dream.

Simply the ability to control growth and development and to overcome all the mental and nervous diseases that flesh is heir to. The practice of medicine need never be dull.

Harry B. Smith
Familiar Figure

By TALBOT LAKE

PERHAPS it isn't too late to say a word about Harry B. Smith, the operetta librettist who died recently at the age of seventy-five. Those of us who have loved—and still love—the works of Victor Herbert should also bow to the memory of the man who wrote most of the librettos for the distinguished Irish-American composer.

Critics, and many others, have complained about those stories, but somehow or other they seem to stand up pretty well. It's hard to believe the man who wrote the words for "Oh, Promise Me," the favorite marriage song of the ages, with a slight bow to Mendelssohn and his "Wedding March."

For sheer achievement Mr. Smith could have retired with honors after doing the libretto for "The Fortune Teller," perhaps the most successful of all the Herbert-Smith operas, but he kept on writing and turning out the working scripts of such productions as "The Serenade," "The Viceroy," and "The Idol's Eye" with Herbert, and such other productions as "The Free Lance" with Sousa, "Watch Your Step," and "Stop, Look and Listen" with Irving Berlin, and "For the Love of Mike" with Jerome Kern. His latest librettos were "The Countess Maritza" in 1926 and "Cherry Blossoms" in 1927.

A native of Buffalo, Mr. Smith moved to Chicago when he was young and later he contributed to the Chicago Daily News at a time when Eugene Field was a columnist and George Ade a reporter on that paper.

He came to New York in 1887 and commenced his successful career with stage pieces, in collaboration with Reinold DeKoven, doing "The Begum" which was followed by "Don Quixote." Perhaps the most popular work of this pair was "Robin Hood," and the most popular song, Mr. Smith wrote was "Oh, Promise Me" from this production. One of his most profitable works was "The Chick of Araby."

The jacket with band trimmings and small collar is typical of the quality expressed in spring costumes. Made in light gray wool with black seal trimmings, the coat is worn over a black sheer wool dress that concentrates fullness at the front.

Complexion Changing as Years Go By

By JACQUELINE HUNT

WOULD you look like a mature woman who has lived gallantly and because of this, one would look like a younger woman for whom life has been harsh and difficult? The answer may determine whether you let your hair become naturally gray or try to hold onto youth a few more years by dyeing.

The younger girl who wishes to become a dazzling blonde or red head overnight must consider whether they would be compatible with her new hair shade, but the older woman must consider many other points before making any change.

As the years pass there are gradual changes in the complexion. Even though it retains its firmness and clarity, there are subtle changes in color and texture. The contours of the face change and little character lines may etch themselves about your eyes and mouth. Sometimes the lines may be missing, yet there is a change in expression that so surely reflects your attitude toward life.

The coloring of the hair has an important bearing on these changes. Graying hair that frames the character-lined face gives softness and a subtly youthful expression. This is entirely lost when the hair is dyed or bleached.

When the face is very youthful in expression and the complexion has an exceptionally youthful texture and color, then your gray hair may be dyed to a soft shade without giving the harsh contrast that is so common when the older woman changes her hair color. But this is all a matter you must decide.

It seems human to admire gray-streaked or silvery hair on others, but to bemoan it on yourself. There are splendid reasons for admiring gray or white hair. When it is healthy, soft and beautifully arranged it gives a striking and individual effect.

Often a new color will make you look years younger and smarter than any amount of hair darkening could possibly do. Think over the matter carefully and if you decide you would like to have your hair darker do give it a trial, using a pure vegetable rinse that can be removed with a shampoo if it isn't satisfactory. Remember, a regular hair dye cannot be removed by bleaching if it isn't what you expected it to be.

Remember, that if you should use a dye darker or different than the original natural color of your hair. In fact, a rinse or dye preparation will seem more natural to you if it is just a fraction of a shade lighter—since hair normally tends to fade as the years pass.

If your trial is satisfactory you may wish to go to a reputable beauty salon and have your hair really dyed or you may prefer using the temporary dye or rinse until your hair has reached a uniform shade of gray or white. Remember, before using a temporary dye or rinse your hair should be thoroughly clean.

For the shampoo use a castile soap, lathered with a light liquid beaten fresh eggs (one of borax (1/4 teaspoon) and 2 ounces bay rum). This will leave your hair fluffy, soft and thoroughly clean without drying out unduly.

Whether a handbag is sentenced to stay at home or is free to go anywhere it must be sympathetic with its environment and with the costume it escorts. Gone are the days when one handbag made the day for a woman, and when one's collection numbered two.

While fashion does not insist that they carry out the costume's theme or intent. Highly imaginative bags are dumped on the bargain counters, being left at the post by the saner sort which are original, but not eccentric. Speaking generally,

QUESTION: "I suppose I am what one calls the sandy type. I have reddish hair, a rare for skin, pale blue eyes and colorless brows and lashes. I realize it isn't possible to do much to improve my looks, but even a little would make me happier. What do you suggest?"

ANSWER: "Ugly Duckling." If your hair is a rather indefinite shade, I think you might improve it greatly by darkening or brightening it with pure Egyptian henna. While you can do this at home by following directions explicitly, you would probably get better results by having it done at a beauty salon. Tone down your florid complexion with beige powder that has only a suggestion of rose in it. A foundation cream will also help subdue the flush. Tip your eye lashes with dark brown mascara and use a brown eyebrow pencil to give your eyebrows a well-defined line. Shade your lids slightly with blue eye-shadow and look in your mirror. The "ugly duckling" will be surprised!

QUESTION: "Please explain when the man goes first, and when the woman, in walking up and down stairs and upon entering a train?"

ANSWER: A woman should be allowed to precede a man when entering a train or walking up the stairs. When leaving a train or walking down stairs, the man goes first, to be on hand to assist the lady when she alights.

Handbags Run to Color, Fashion's Latest Edict

By IRENE VAIL

New York—Colors, bright and gay, are the lively choice among the handbags. The feeling seems to be for color, but frankly it's a bit early to say definitely whether the color will be the background or the accents. Just between us, I fancy it will be largely a matter of personal preference. When it comes to the occasional or odd bag, it's not wise to try to struggle through a winter resort season without a white one. Colors come and go, but which well-dressed women did not show a marked preference for white.

QUESTION: "Please tell me what the exact difference is between food ordered a la carte and table d'hôte—Mary W."

ANSWER: A la carte means that food is ordered from a printed menu and that each item is charged for separately. Table d'hôte signifies that there is a fixed charge for a complete meal of five or six courses.

QUESTION: "What should a woman do with her handbag when dining out?"—Mrs. K. T. L.

ANSWER: If the table at which one is dining is roomy, the handbag may be placed on the table beside one's plate. If dining at a small table, however, it should go under one's napkin where it will be out of the way.

Citrus Fruits Always Good For Partying

By JUDITH WILSON

FOR YOUR party luncheons or Sunday night suppers, as well as your daily menus, the refreshing flavor of the citrus fruits play an important role. Fruit cups and salads depend on oranges or tangerines for their color and flavor. Desserts are virtually unlimited. Grapefruit makes a good extender for the more expensive berries and tropical fruits that are coming into the markets just now.

LUNCHEONS

Grapefruit-Strawberry Cup
Chicken and Mushrooms in Patty Shells
Buttered Peas
Clover Rolls
Endive with Roquefort Dressing
Baked Alaska

Consomme Cocktail Sticks
Black and Green Olives
Cheese Omelet and Spinach
Orange-Pecan Muffins
Fresh Fruit Salad
Wafers
Coffee

Strawberry Cup
Peel grapefruit, cut into membrane-free sections and then dice. Combine equal parts of the grapefruit dice and fresh strawberries that have been cut in halves lightly sugared and drained. Arrange the fruit in sherbet glasses and cover with equal parts of grapefruit juice and strawberry juice that have been sweetened to taste and chilled thoroughly.

Spanish Salad
Toast 2 tomatoes over a flame or dip in scalding water and remove the skins. Cut each one into 3 thick slices. Remove the seeds from 2 green peppers and cut each of these into 3 thick rings. Peel 2 oranges, dice and mix with 1 teaspoon finely chopped onion. On each salad plate arrange a crisp lettuce leaf and a thick slice of tomato topped with a pepper ring. Fill the center of the pepper ring with the diced orange. Serve with a highly seasoned French dressing.

Winter Fruit Cup
Peel 6 oranges and 1 grapefruit into sections, removing all membrane. Mix with 1 cup canned white cherries from which the pits have been removed. Sprinkle 6 tablespoons lemon juice and 1/2 cups powdered sugar over the fruit and chill thoroughly. A few finely chopped maraschino cherries or cream de menthe cherries added to the cup just before serving will add a touch of color.

Orange-Meat Salad
Toss together 2 cups orange sections that have been freed from membrane and 2 cups diced left-over duck or chicken that has been marinated in the following dressing: 6 tablespoons lemon juice, 3 tablespoons olive oil, 1 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon pepper. Serve at once on crisp lettuce leaves.

Citrus Fruit Pie
Peel 1 lemon, 1 grapefruit and 3 oranges, remove the sections and combine with 1 1/2 cups sugar and 3 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca. Put the mixture into an unbaked pie shell and cover with a top crust. Moisten the edges and seal by pinching into scallops. Bake 15 minutes in a very hot oven, then reduce the heat and continue baking until the pie is done—about 35 minutes. This is a fruit pie that is really different.

Orange-Pecan Muffins
Cream 1/3 cup shortening and blend with 3/4 cup sugar. Beat the yolks of 2 eggs and stir into the creamed mixture. Sift together 1 1/2 cups cake flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder and 1/4 teaspoon salt and add to the first mixture.

Grapefruit-Asparagus Salad
Arrange in flower-petal pattern on crisp lettuce alternate sections of grapefruit and short asparagus tips. Five of each are enough for each salad. Heap fluffy mayonnaise in the center and garnish with thin slices of stuffed olives.

A Case of an Old Love Coming Back Despite a New Girl

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

WHEN a young man writes me that he is hesitating between the new and the old love he must forgive me for refusing to believe him very seriously concerned over either. Frankly, I don't see anything amiss with a change of sweethearts, if the first one is as easily replaced as it would appear was the case of the young man who writes me.

You and Your Child

Child Controls Parent With Temper Tantrum

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

WHEN three-year-old Sidney V. wants anything very much, he meets his mother's opposition with a temper tantrum. He screams, the tears flow, he throws himself onto the floor and kicks or beats his head against it. These tricks failing, he knows how to make his body stiff and get blue in the face. The first time he had a temper tantrum, he tried this and, once after that, he has not had one since then.

There is undoubtedly something exhilarating about a new love. Some natures seem to require new love interests at intervals more or less stated. It is not necessarily true that love is everlasting, although it is as near everlasting as is humanly necessary in a sufficient number of cases to establish some sort of precedent.

An unattached man with a man's natural curiosity about women should, in my opinion, look around before he makes his final selection. Why not? There are a surprising number of attractive women in the world, most of them still to be won, which is by way of encouraging this man in his experimental mood.

Desirable women are granted many privileges among them that of being capricious, of changing their minds and coming back to say they are sorry and will never do it again. If sufficiently desirable, a woman will be given another chance, even with an exciting new rival in the field, for after all, men are creatures of habit, and having attached themselves to one woman they are, all things being equal, loath to break the bond.

The young man who writes me today seems called upon to choose between a strong-willed young woman given to temperament and one who is capricious enough to attempt to play the old cat-and-mouse game with him. If she succeeds in doing it once she will naturally assume she can play it fast and loose with him again, in which summing up of the case she is apt to be quite wrong.

Unless the situation calls for immediate action, I strongly advise this young man to remain pleasantly aloof. I cannot so far betray my sex as to advise him to play one woman against the other, but I can assure him that he knows that his affections are in danger because with the girl who felt sufficiently sure of him to play cat to his mouse. She really needs a lesson. Marriageable young men are not to be respected and ill-treated, for this is an age when matrimony is avoided rather than courted.

Today's marriageable men and women take their love affairs more casually than the pre-war marriageables did. And right they are about it, too.

Fewer and fewer folks die of unrequited love. Time heals the heartaches more painlessly and more quickly now because the patient wants to recover. Broken hearts and secret sorrows went out of fashion many years ago, and no one seems at all inclined to revive the languishing lover or the love-sick maid of the Victorian era.

If one good girl is as good as another there's no particular reason for feeling depressed over her caprices, since the supply is almost inexhaustible. When, and if, a girl looms up who cannot be so easily replaced there is a different story to tell.

Hurt pride is painful, but it should not be confused with a hurt heart. Being one who sets great store on habit and propriety, I think the best advice I can give this young man is to keep free of all entangling alliances until he, as well as the girl he finally chooses feel that the other is indispensable.

At the present time I am rather inclined toward the old girl, but this may only mean I am angry at the other. What to do, what to do?—H.P.
